THE NEW "FLORODOUGHRA" SEXTET.

(Air: "Tell Me, Pretty Maiden?")

Oh, tell me, grafting coppers, are there very many more like you? There are a few, kind sir, and fine and daisy grafters, too. Then, tell me, grafting coppers, what these fine and daisy grafters do? Find sir, their work is smooth and oily and their business is their own. Please tell me, coppers, what the grafters do for an hour or so, how far such fellows can really go. We never let up on any one we intend to be our most particular friend.

of John Hessian, of the Tenderloin precinct. His roundman charged him with talking to a young woman for about fifteen minutes.

"What have you got to say for yourself?" asked Devery.

"I just met this young lady and stopped and talked with her," said Hessian.

"Time and title, soldiers?" DEVERY—Why didn't you see this roundman? Are you near-sighted?

POLICEMAN—No, sir! My back was turned to him.

DEVERY—Well, if you were standing with your back to the roundman the lady must have been facing him. Didn't she tip up her nose at you?

POLICEMAN—The specifications are not correct. When you're caught with the goods on you and you can't get away with it you want to stand up with nerve and take your medicine. You don't know nothing then, NO MATTER UNDER WHAT CIRCUMSTANCES, A MAN DON'T WANT TO KNOW NOTHING WHEN HE'S CAUGHT WITH THE GOODS ON HIM.

"Don't stand up and try to throw down your roundman when he's got you right," you tell that young lady when you're talking to her next time that when you're got your back to the roundman she must look the other way.

Always, I will tell you thirty days pay for ten days' pay for not getting tipped off. You don't want to go blind on these things hereafter."

Stern Judge.

When Devery stepped into Headquarters to-day to hear complaints against delinquent policemen he was the centre of attraction. The usual time of opening the court is 10 o'clock. This morning it was 11 o'clock.

Devery, who was dressed in a very light checked suit, white tie with blue dots, came in, smiled just once and then looked solemn.

The honest policeman who is guilty of a slight breach of discipline and was called up for trial looked at Devery in surprise.

He was meditative and deliberate in his interrogations. He spoke with a studied calmness, but there was an undercurrent of perturbation that he could not fully conceal.

There were the usual crowds of loiterers and interested spectators. Some of them were witnesses for the accused. They came early for fear they would miss some detail of the proceedings.

Consider a "clubhouse" case.

The first policeman on trial was Peter Duffey, of the Leonard precinct, charged with striking a woman with a club.

Duffey said he was always making trouble for the police and had preferred charges against the police before.

"Have you those policemen with you?" asked Devery.

"I could get them," said Duffey. "If I have the time." Then, turning to Devery, he said:

"You are night watchman. You need a line with you thirty days pay for being off duty. I want you to understand they are not to be arrested."

Then he said to Duffey: "This is not the first time you have been charged with assaulting people, including your wife. I take this case under advisement."

When John S. Kelly, of the Macdougal precinct, appeared the Deputy Commissioner said:

"Kelly, I told you not to come here again. You are charged with leaving your post without leave for forty-eight hours. You are charged with leaving your post without leave for forty-eight hours. You are charged with leaving your post without leave for forty-eight hours."

STOCK TRADING LACKED LIFE.

THE GENERAL TENDENCY WAS TOWARD IMPROVEMENT.

Despite Bullish Influence United States Steel Evincing No Inclination to Advance.

There was little life in the stock market at the opening to-day despite the fact that influences were strongly bullish.

Prices from the London market came considerably higher, showing a gain of 2 points in St. Paul.

The United States Steel stocks, however, made only a feeble response, displaying an advance of 1-4 per cent. on a demand for 3,000 shares.

St. Paul was the conspicuous feature, selling up to 105 1/8, a net gain of 1 per cent.

The local Traction and Industrial shares were firm, but showed little or no activity.

The total sales of stocks to-day were 350,000 shares.
